

The Night Money Made Scentsationally
Good Cents!

Once upon a time, a child was almost ready for bed when they remembered a shiny toy they wanted.

They had enough money to buy the toy, but they also knew they were saving for something bigger.

Remembering the money rules, they thought carefully about using money wisely, saving, spending smart, and having a plan.

Realizing that following the money rules meant choosing something better, they felt proud and calm.

As they closed their eyes, they dreamt about how their money would help them achieve their goals.

Following the money rules wasn't hard—it was a habit that helped their dreams grow.

Starting the day with the right habits, they knew they could make their dreams come true.

With the money rules guiding them, they were excited to plan for the future and watch their dreams become reality.
